

Infection
Prevention
Society

INFECTION PREVENTION WEEK 2026

SUPPORTER PACK

Thank you for supporting Infection Prevention Week 2026.

This year's campaign celebrates the vital role infection prevention and control professionals play in protecting patients, staff and communities every day.

We've created a selection of resources to help you get involved, including social media graphics, suggested posts and campaign activities. Whether you're sharing your own experiences, celebrating colleagues or highlighting the impact of IPC, every post helps raise awareness of our profession.

When sharing content, please use #InfectionPreventionWeek2026 and tag the Infection Prevention Society so we can amplify your posts.

Follow and tag IPS

@IPS_Infection

@infection
prevention
society

Infection
Prevention
Society

Suggested Social Media Posts For IPS Members

I'm proud to support #InfectionPreventionWeek2026.

Infection prevention plays a vital role in protecting patients, staff and communities. This week I'm joining colleagues across health and care to celebrate the impact of infection prevention and control.

For Corporate Members

Proud to support #InfectionPreventionWeek2026.

Collaboration between healthcare professionals, researchers, educators and industry partners helps strengthen infection prevention and improve patient safety. We're proud to support Infection Prevention Week and the work of infection prevention professionals across health and care.

Join the Campaign Conversation

We're inviting members to take part in two simple activities during Infection Prevention Week. Share your responses on social media and tag IPS so we can join the conversation.

Day 1: Who has shaped your IPC journey?

Behind every infection prevention professional is someone who has influenced, supported or inspired them along the way.

This could be:

- A mentor
- A colleague
- A researcher
- A pioneer
- Someone who encouraged and supported you

Tell us about someone who has made a difference to infection prevention, and why.

Suggested starter

For #InfectionPreventionWeek2026, I'm recognising someone who helped shape my IPC journey: [Name].

Their support, knowledge and encouragement helped me [brief reason].

Thank you for the difference you've made.

Day 2: What would you tell your younger IPC self?

What advice do you wish you'd received when you were starting out in infection prevention?

Whether it's about building confidence, embracing opportunities or learning from experience, we'd love to hear your reflections.

Share one piece of advice you'd give your younger IPC self and help inspire the next generation of IPC professionals.

Suggested starter

For #InfectionPreventionWeek2026, my advice to my younger IPC self would be:

"[Your advice]"

What's the one thing you'd tell your younger self at the start of your IPC career?

Help us spread the message

Every post helps showcase the expertise, dedication and impact of infection prevention professionals. Thank you for supporting Infection Prevention Week 2026 and helping us celebrate the people making a difference across health and care.